Says Cameron Due For Oil Boom

Rockdale, Texas

Editor The Herald:

Cameron and its good people are right on the eve of a sure enough "oil boom," and perhaps do not realize it, or dream of the truth.

Within two and seven tenths miles of Cameron's southeasternmost corporate corner a rich stratum of oil in the Edwards Lime, has lain dormant and undeveloped for millions of years, though not, by any means has it been untouched.

This richly saturated stratum of oil was touched and uncovered in September 1926, when Sullivan & Overton dropped a fish tail bit into it at exactly 3036 feet and had about 22 inches of saturation—they plugged the hole.

This was in the No. 1 R. L. Batte (or Sarah Threadgill as some called it) in the W. W. Lewis survey, on Riverside farm. This hole was put down on the Western bank of, and 150 feet from, Little River, just opposite to and on the downward side of the hugh "Midway" conglomerate fault which outcrops tremendously on the Ben McClellen farm, and which hugh geologic disturbance has diverted Little River from pursuing its normal course of 5:53o east to cause it to turn there and run at almost due north, about N. 5o E to N 10o East, for about 16 miles until at a high bluff north by northeast of Cameron, it makes another hugh bend having traversed along the line of least resistance until loftier altitude was encountered on lands of Mrs. J. M. Randolph in the S. G. Robertson survey where at her 126 acre southwest corner, the river swings widely to northeastward,

Mollie Campaigns for Father

Louis-Schmelling Fight Pictures

Motion pictures of the Joe Louis and Max Schmelling championship fight in New York, will be shown at Cameron Theatre on Thursday and Friday, July 7 and 8.

The film will have a two day run at the Cameron Theatre.

Fred Allen Brings Best Musical Show And Comedy to Cameron Today

The funniest acts on stage or screen are those of people who appear to be fumbling or missing their cues. Nothing seems to appeal to the public more than a pair of acrobats who are trying their best to do an intricate act but manage to step in each other's faces.

Yet few people realize that this type of comedy calls for an expert performer who can do the trick the

ROBIN HOOD SUNDAY

Robin Hood! How strange the fascination, how thrilling the sound of those two words—the legendary name of a hunted outlaw—beloved by thousands of Englishmen.

Well may it thrill, for "The Adventures of Robin Hood," a Warner Bros. film in Technicolor, starring Errol Flinn is coming to the Cameron Theatre Sunday and Monday.

Rich in lore is the story of how a Saxon noble, Sir Robin of Locksley, the albest archer in all England, gathered a band of stalwarts around him to harass the cruel Norman knights. How the outlaw Robin Hood plundered the rich and feed the poor has been sung and re-sung in ballads and has come down through the centuries—an incomparably fascinating story.

With this wealth of material did two Warner Bros. writers sit down to fashion the script, the picturization of which is due to reach the Radio City Music Hall screen so soon.

"Constant readers" all over the world are probably going to take their pens in hand to launch loud and lusty complaints to newspaper editors when they get a glimpse of the line, "Original story by Norman Reilly Raine and Seton I. Miller," which will flash on the screen among the credits for "The Adventures of Robin Hood."

Messrs. Raine and Miller, when

Ad in Herald Sells Electrolux in Chicago, Dealer Here Reports After Delivery

The power of Advertising is the best proven of all salesmanship investments. Another example of its effectiveness has just come to light here.

O. O. Duncum, dealer for the Electrolux refrigerator, has just delivered a new unit to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Horelica at Ad Hall.

It was a gift from their son, Hubert Horelica who lives at 4446 Racine Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

The remarkable story of the sale is that Mr. Duncum in February of this year ran an advertisement in The Herald. The ad was read in Chicago and the Electrolux purchased by correspondence with Mr. Duncum.

The advertisement was a small one and inexpensive. Mr. Duncum was favorably impressed by the pulling power of the Herald and shortly after he received the letter from Mr. Horelica last February, he confessed he did not think The Herald was read as far away as the Windy City. Home folks in many places far beyond the borders of Texas read The Herald.

Mr. Duncum was happy to announce that Mr. and Mrs. Horelica are pleased with their Electrolux and that it was purchased only after comparison with other units. "Our refrigerator stands the test of any and all comparison," said Mr. Duncum.

CROWD ROARS AS HE HITS POLITICIANS

W. Lee O'Daniel, the man who found a warm spot in the hearts of Millions of Texans by playing Hill Billy Music—who came up from a poor ranch boy whose mother washed the clothes of the rich that he might go to school, stood on the same spot here Thursday where Jim Hogg once opened his campaign for governor and was cheered by 8000 people as he chided the politicians.

The rally, switched over from the court house lawn, two blocks away, shortly before noon, saw the largest crowd ever assembled in Cameron for a political address. The crowd was estimated variously from 7000 to 8000. It was recalled by old timers in the crowd that Hogg and Clark held a joint debate in the park, and how campaingning has changed. In those days there were no loud speakers.

Thursday Mr. ODaniel, standing befor a microphone atop his sleek, shiny bus, was able to tell every one of the 8000 about his campaign for governor, how he came to run and what he proposes to do. In the old days men like Hogg, Bailey and Neff, stood and pumped their oratory from good lungs out into the ears of their crowd.

Immaculate in white, though coatless, the Hill Billy Music Master, commanding good Irish wit made the crowd roar with his sallies at politicians whom he says at first were "surprised, then amazed, then alarmed and now scared."

In the red railing around the bus brink stood his three Irish kids, Pat, Mike and Molly, members of the now nationally famous Hill Billy band whose music has flowed into the homes of rural dwellers and city folks alike for more than ten years. O'Daniel started the Light Crust Doughboys and had millions turning on the radio shortly after noon each day for ten years. Severing his connection with the Burrus Mills he pooled his resources and started the Hill Billy band and incidentally a new brand of flour by the same name.

The crowd was colorful. Women predominated and perhaps 1500 children ran riot as the Hill Billy boys began the program with music

Life Road For W. Lee O'Daniel Leads Back Over Stormy Years; Came Up From Ranch Boy

W. LEE O'DANIEL

A farm boy who rose from poverty to business success, the career of W. Lee O'Daniel, Fort Worth flour merchant running for governor of Texas, parallels the "self-made man" formula of many American Statesmen.

As farm hand, newsboy, hotel busboy, Lee early learned the value of work to make his way in life. His earliest recollection is of playing at his widowed mother's skirts while each day and into the night she washed the clothes of the wealthy on an old worn-out washboard for 25c a day to provide cornbread and beans for her two children.

Witnessing such drudgery by his mother is one of the prime influences in his advocation of old-age pensions. His mother's finger worn Bible is his most prized possession. It was all she had to leave him.

Lee's father died in the boy's infancy and when he was five, his mother married a poor tenant ranchman, a childhood sweetheart.

"My stepfather was a wonderful man," O'Daniel states. "No father could have been better to a son than my stepfather was to me. He overworked and hired helpers he couldn't afford so that I could stay in school. After 17 years of slavery on that ranch, he and mother only owed the landlord $4000! But I never heard them complain."

His Mother's butter and egg money bought his clothes so he could go to school, and he slopped the hogs, herded cattle, plowed corn and raked hay on the ranch after school hours. When he graduated from high school, he entered business college, paying his tuition on the installment plan.

"My young life was uneventful

There will be classes in BYPU work, Sunday School and MWU. There will be preaching at 11 a. m. and 8 p. m.

Dollins Would Save Milam Co. Taxes

Tax Payers in Milam County benefited to the extent of almost Two Million Dollars in ten years if John Dollins, candidate for the State Senate, is given an opportunity to champion in the senate a bill he supported and helped to pass through the House in the last session.

Mr. Dollins says that 48 prosperous counties in Texas pay no ad valorem taxes for state purposes because they have been relieved by the Legislature at various times in the past.

"If it is proper to give back to the people of these counties their ad valorem taxes for state purposes, it is nothing but just that Milam should be given the same consideration. If I am elected to the Senate I know I can get this legislation through. The people of Milam county will not be required to pay this tax. They can use the amount involved to reduce their own taxes in the county, or they can take it and get it matched with federal funds and use it for public works and employ those who are now without employment."

It is interesting to note that Milam county pays more than $75,000 in state ad valorem taxes. If this money is matched it will amount to around two millions in ten years or $200,000 per year as federal allotments exceed local amounts.

In this program of Mr. Dollins business men here as well as those who labor, see an opportunity for a long period of re-employment and a conservation of tax money, turned to useful purposes back on the farms and rural roads.

"Picnicing or camping out is the most thoroughly enjoyed form of outdoor entertainment for the entire family and really is most economical. Most any food your family enjoys may be canned when the regular food supply is put up."

"No one wants all the food fried, so a little forethought is required in selecting the necessary camping equipment. Two or three covered kettles, a coffee pot, and two frying pans, besides individual plates, knives, forks and spoons are essentials if one is camping for several days. Of course your family may prefer a "one meal" outing near home. Then weiners might be your food and forked stisks your equipment."

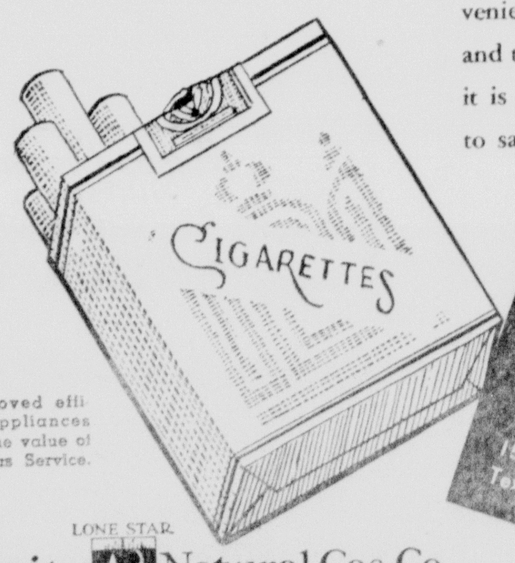
A Lone Star GAS CUSTOMER WRITES IN PART...
"I still possess our old budget book of early housekeeping days and when I look over the amounts set down for coal and wood purchases, I am glad I am living in the 'gas age' with its contributions of economy and convenience to the housewife's comfort. My gas bills for the past two months (May and June 1934) have been $3.40 and $3.50. That includes gas for all purposes . . . cooking, hot water and refrigeration."
*For obvious reasons name of writer is omitted. Our files contain many such letters.

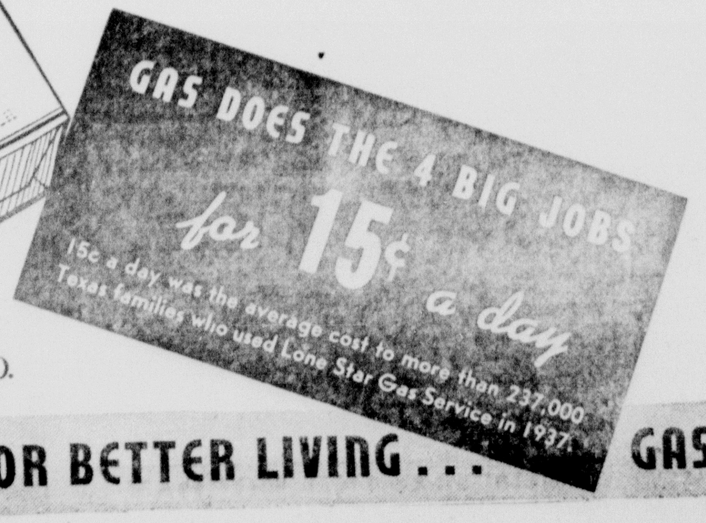
"GAS AGE" comforts cost only the price of a daily package of cigarettes

The cost of gas service in the average home on Lone Star Gas lines is only about 15c a day—probably the cheapest item in the household budget. Other living costs, taxes, and the like are UP, but here's one thing that remains at the same low cost —LONE STAR GAS SERVICE a bargain in better living.

For this small cost per day it heats your home in winter with a cleaner, more healthful warmth; it provides you with instant hot water whenever you need it; it protects your food in the simplest and quietest of all refrigerators; it cooks your meals without attention when operating through a modern gas range. When one thinks of the convenience of this service, the comfort it provides and the work and energy it saves at so small a cost, it is little wonder that many gas customers write to say, "I am glad I am living in the gas age."



The greatly improved efficiency of 1937 appliances adds still more to the value of your Lone Star Gas Service.



GAS DOES THE 4 BIG JOBS

15c a day was the average cost to more than 237,000 Texas families who used Lone Star Gas Service in 1937.

except for being pushed off the steps at school and landing on my head, and later falling off a load of sand and again landing on my head," O'Daniel relates. "It seemed like two pretty hard knocks at the time but now I can see that it was only nature's way of fitting me to become a politician later on in life."

Shagging newspapers on a bicycle at 4 a. m. each morning and "hashing" in a hotel for his board, Lee finished his business school course and went to work at $10 a week as a stenographer in a flour milling company. He liked his work so much his sales-manager boss let him do most of it. But the top boss finally learned the situation and fired the $500 a month sales manager, giving Lee the job at double his old salary, or $20 a week. He has been in the flour milling business continuously ever since.

He fell in love only once, and almost blew up his chances with her, he tells, by announcing that he wanted a family of two boys and one girl whom he would name Pat, Mike and Molly.

"She had no objection to the children, but seriously objected to having them named even before she had consented to marry me," he relates. "But results count, and now we have Pat, Mike and Molly."

He nearly lost out again on the day of their wedding because a truck driver overlooked delivering a sack of flour that day. In order not to make the customer mad, Lee delivered the sack of flour himself and arrived late at the wedding, with his new clothes covered with flour. "But results count," O'Daniel added again, "We got married and we also kept the customer."

The 46 year old candidate has no hobbies, he says, except hard work. He does not smoke, drink or know the game of bridge. He doesn't hunt, fish, play golf or any other game.

will speak on "Milam County in Texas History."

Miss Mary Frances White, a grand niece of Benjamin R. Milam, will unveil the monument. She is the daughter of J. B. White, Editor and Publisher of the Cameron Herald.

An interesting part of the program is the address of Bryant Baker who will interpret the statue. This will be followed by Roy Law, who will present the statue. Thisetaoinnun present the statue to Milam county. The acceptance speech will be made by Judge Jeff T. Kemp.

Among the Texas historians will be L. W. Kemp of Houston who had a large part in the location of monuments and markers.

Cameron's Yoe High School band will give a concert beginning 30 minutes ahead of the ceremonies.

Allen

accepted way . . . and then has so perfected his skill that he can "clown it.

Behind this skill is the secret of Fred Allen's great popularity on screen and radio.

Always taking a funny story or situation one step further so that he appears to be confused, or at least the butt of some one else's smarter with, Fred writes his own material, rehearses it and spots his laugh-making sallies with the dexterity of an orchestra conductor.

It may be that this knack is born of his early experience in vaudeville.

Fred started as a juggler!

The deft way in which he creates the impression that he is "dropping the ball" or getting hopelessly involved is best demonstrated in "Sally, Irene and Mary," 20th Century-Fox's ownright uproarious musical opening July 7 at the Cameron Theatre. Alice Faye and Tony Martin head the cast with Fred.

Fred plays the part of a theatrical agent who starts out to get three girls big jobs on Broadway. They settle into the comparative comfort (?) of manicure work as a result of his big time efforts.

Again in the film Fred provides a hilarious scene when he is dispossessed for non-payment of office rent. The manner in which he continues to do business with his office fixtures scattered over the sidewalk provides the Cameron Theatre audience with scenes that border on hysteria.

Yet every confused move has been thought out with the utmost care by the canny Bostonian—to the intense amusement of his thousands of admirers.

Oil

meets Big Elm creek and a subsidiary stream from up Ben Arnold way, and on lands of S. W. McLerran to S. W. Lamkin, J. W. Gandy and John T. Thweatt, it swings again upon the normal course Southeastward to the Brazos.

For many years I have been telling numerous citizens of Cameron that they have a rich oil field right at thier southeasternmost back yard, but none believed me. It has been a case of a "prophet not without honor save in his own country."

But now it has come to a show down, and Western Gulf Corporation of Houston on their 3000 acres up and down, straddling the Little River Fault which comes out almost under the old McCown bridge north of the Lamkin home place, and in their No. 1 Batte (or Day, as you please) are going to prove me to be a prophet with plenty of honor at home, or one dambigfool, and I am taking the chance, supremely confident that I'm right and that I know what I am talking about.

For I 'scouted' that 1926 No. 1 Batte hole day and night and saw everything. I saw the cores taken out at 2 a. m. and 4 a. m. when Cameron citizens were peacefully asleep and blissfully ignorant of what was being done. There was plenty of oil. You know heavy mud pumped on top of oil will kill it and conceal it, and fresh sand spread over it successfully covers it up from the layman.

The 1938 No. 1 Batte (or Day) well is in the identical same structure and same fault, as the No. 1 Batte of 1926 and an honestly drilled and managed and completed hole cannot fail to find the oil in that structure, and I believe that is what those Tarver Bros. are going to give us. They are out for production if its there. They are not dry hole moneying this wildcat.

They have two of the best and most capable drillers in Texas, Buddie Wilson and Stefan Heilbig and a crew of competent rough necks, some of whom themselves are good drillers.

So Cameron, look out; your oil boom is on the way, and you are going to beat us to it down here in Rockdale. However there be some 'drippin's' fall on us, before it's all over, for the structure is 12 to 15 miles wide, in places, and 66 miles long.

C. F. DRAKE.

NEWS FROM MILANO

The hot dry winds are burning up the truck patches considerably the past few days but the good housewives are not letting anything go to waste as they are very busy canning —one lady here has canned 12 hundred cans of tomatoes, besides several hundred cans of corn and peas.

The water mellons and cantaloupes are ripe but there is not a very promising crop of them.

The 4th of July passed off very quiet here as ever one went somewhere.

Miss Marjorie Elam who ras been attending Baylor University is here for a visit with her aunt, Mrs. Jim Baggett.

Miss Taylor of San Marcos is a guest in the S. W. Taylor home this week.

Mrs. Dan Robinson and Mrs. C. Coffey attended the celebration in Temple last week.

Miss Bonnie Bell Brooks and Josephine Barber who is attending school in Austin spent the week end here with home folks; they returned to their school Monnay.

Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Crawford spent the 4th in Waco visiting relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Taylor spent the week end at their home here. Mr. Taylor is attending summer school at A and M College.

Mrs. Mattie Preston of Rockdale was a guest of her sister Mrs. R. E. Thweatt here last week.

Miss Mary Lee Taylor will return to Galveston Satnrday to resume her work at the hospital where she is in training for a nurse.

Mrs. Jess Martin of Taylor was greeting her many friends here Sunday.

Several from Milano attended the picnic at Liberty the 4th.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Miller and daughter Ann of Houston spent the week end here in the home of Mrs. Miller mother Mrs. Ida Howes.

Mrs. Monroe Pierce of Houston is a guest in the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. Holdiness.

Mr. and Mrs. John Lusk are spending a few days in Temple. Earl Bacus of Temple is here to relieve him while he is away.

A beautiful social courtesy was the shower given in the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Thweatt Friday evening for Mrs. J. A. Williams the former Miss Pearl Pinkerton who was recently married. The lawn was beautifully lighted where five tables of 42 was enjoyed. At a late hour the guest were invited into the house where refreshments were served, cake and punch and the gifts presented to Mr. and Mrs. Williams. They received many useful and pretty gifts. Prof. C. N. Heath made a very interesting talk to the bride and groom, wishing them a long and prosperous life, joined by their many friends present. The home was beautifully decorated with marigolds and schasta daisies and other cut flowers. Mrs. J. D. Peeples, Dan Robinson, R. Brennan, Lloyd Ferguson and T. N. Wadsworth were joint hostesses with Mrs. Thweatt.

FARM CLUB NEWS

Mrs. Beuna Chambers,
Bryant Station Home Dem. Club,
Rogers, Texas:

" Parents, tear yourself away from your work long enough to teach your children how to play and play with them" was the admonition given the Bryant Station Club, by Mrs. Beuna Chambers when the club met with Mrs. C. L. Lively on Thursday, June 30.

"The ability to play must be cultivated to maintain mental health, to enable one to enjoy leisure, and to develop the ability to adjust oneself to varying situations in life. At the same time you are checking criminal tendencies as well as many minor undersirable traits in your children" Mrs. Chambers said further.

Picnics or camping trips were suggested by Mrs. Ed. Senkel as one way for parents and children to enjoy leisure together. To make these occasions truly a delight, she advised that they be made as little work as possible. This may be done by assembling necessary equipment for whatever type of outing your family enjoys most, be it backyard or "down on the creek" meals, all day picnics or several day camping trips. This equipment may be very simple and inexpensive. Collect favorite menus and recipes and let them become "family traditions" and lastly, when canning, include materials for these favorite dishes.

The business meeting was presided over by Mrs. C. L. Lively, Club president. Besides attending routine matters, a stunt for Rally Night was chosen and Mrs. Ed. Senkel and Miss Cleo Neal were appointed to perform the stunt.

The hostess served refreshments to the 13 members present.

Due to Short Course there will no meeting on July 14. The next meeting will be on July 28, with Mrs. B. B. McAnulty. The subejct for discussion "What's It All About." Visitors are always welcome.

ON FARM AND RANCH

• In Texas, farmers out-number city folks 2 to 1—there are about 4,000,000 men, women and children on Texas farms and ranches. These people contribute heavily to the material and cultural welfare of the state; our traditional Texan is a man of the open spaces, a man intimate with the soil, the sun, the blue Texas sky.

The Humble Company, as a Texas institution, values highly its twin privileges of association with the farmers and ranchers of Texas in the development of Texas' greatest natural resource, and of supplying them with the motor fuels, motor oils and lubricants they use.

Made by Texans from Texas crude oils, these Humble products evidence their quality with day-in-day-out dependable performance in actual use. Try them—you'll find a product for every farm need, a price for every purse.

In Five Years He'll Own His Own Shop . . . We Know!

HE'S SAVING FOR THE FUTURE

This cheery young chap is an example of what "to save and advance" stands for. At twelve he was delivering groceries, during high school he worked after school and on Saturdays, when he graduated he became the boss' best selling clerk. During all these steps of advancement he has saved to reach his goal . . . to own his own store!
In five years he will own his own store . . . but will you have reached your goal? Will you have the home you've been planning on, or whatever else you've always wanted? You most likely will if you've saved a certain amount each week or month. However, if you haven's saved it's never too late to start. We welcome small or large accounts and investments alike.

and song. People were packed densly over more than an acre of ground and scattered out to the edges of the park. The heat was intense although the trees that once sheltered Hogg and Clark, beat back the sun rays. There were a great number in trees and three hundred stood on the floor of an old band shell.

It was a coatless crowd and was mixed with rural and city folks, all crowding up to hear the candidate and to see at first hand the boys who have daily taught thousands to hum melodies and sing the old songs of prairie days.

Early Thursday morning folks began to arrive in town. By ten o'clock it looked like a good Saturday crowd and by noon the streets leading to the park were choked by automobiles.

State Highway Patrolmen stood guard on the No. 77 highway to minimize hazards and the crowd was orderly. Supporters here were praising the patrolmen who directed traffic.

Mr. O'Daniel followed his style and routine of speech. He opened the meeting with a few words. No one introduced him. He says that looks too much like the politicians, so he goes on top his bus and with his orchestra starts the show. The crowd broke into wild cheering as they saw him going up the stairs.

When he had concluded his address Mr. O'Daniel was visibly tired and was assisted down the steps. He is showing the strain of a three speech a day itinery and friends here were doubtful if he would hold out with such a program. He complained of his throat. His voice was a bit hoarse but it was the same voice that has been coming in over the air for more than a decade and so the folks settled down for a real personal program by the old master himself.

A special broadcast hookup with WBAP was arranged. The Southwestern Bell Telephone Company ran its wires down for the broadcast.

He said that if the people of Texas found after two years that he could not give them a better government, then the state could be turned back to the politicians. "I started out as a salesman and then a business man in my own right, to make an honest living. Look at me now, I'm in politics."

Mr. O'Daniel said he never dreamed of running for governor and had thought the office too high and honorable for an ordinary man but when he got more than 50,000 letters asking him to run, he concluded it was time for someone to represent the "common people of Texas, and the state I love so well."

As he proceeded with his address, music was brought into play. When the 15 minute broadcast was over he turned to a different style, laid aside his manuscript and made a fine speech, just like any political office seeker would make. He lacks the oratory of the rabble rouser and employs a moderate tone of voice, talking in a matter of fact way.

As his speech proceeded many moved away and disappeared through the streets, but in the main the crowd stayed with him through the speech and gave liberal response as the orchestra crew passed the barrels for the collection.

Local political observers were conceding privately that O'Daniel has captured Milam county and will lead with a heavy plurality over any other candidate and may get a clear majority of the vote.

Robin Hood

assigned to do the screen play on Robin Hood, discovered a great wealth of material through which they waded with mounting enthusiasm. After digesting several dozen different versions of the popular legend, still popular after eight centuries, they went back to the original sources—old ballads, and legends, some of them printed in the archaic English of Chaucer's day.

Having done this, they tossed away all the notes they had made and wrote a skeleton story of the particular incidents of Robin Hood they remembered from their boyhood days.

The picture contains no end of battling with bows and arrows, quarter staffs, piks and broadswords and has a particularly thrilling duel between Robin and Sis Guy. Immense scenic sets were built for "The Adventures of Robin Hood" described as the most elaborate film of the year. It is accompanied by a superb musical score, composed by Erich Wolfgang Korngold.
